Athlete's Fete Tonight Paced By Sam Proctor

The second annual "Athletes Fete," sponsored by the Block L Club of Loyola College, will be held in the Alumni Memorial Gymnasium tonight from 9 until 1 o'clock. Sam Proctor and his orchestra will supply the music.

Juniors, Seniors Elect Officers

Final results of the Junior class elections see the candidates first announced as successfully retaining their offices.

John A. O'Connor is the new junior class president. He polled thirty-six votes to defeat his nearest rival, Anthony Spartana, by three ballots in an election which was the subject of a protest in the Student Council. Spartana becomes vice-president.

Vincent Brocato is the successful nominee for secretary, after he drew sixty-three votes to Joseph Serio's fifty-three. Richard Wojtek is now treasurer, having beaten Robert Murphy and William Schneider.

A motion protesting the conduct of this election, on the grounds that voters were not required to show their registration cards, was heard but defeated by the Student Council on Wednesday, November 8.

John J. Garland is the new president of the senior class, after the second balloting held last Monday. He received 23 votes. George Fitzpatrick ran second, with 16 votes, and become vice-president. Francis Hubbard and Edward Howser were unopposed candidates for secretary and treasurer.

Conroy, Annual Editor, Resigns; Moderator Lists Difficulties

Eugene F. X. Conroy has resigned as editor of the Evergreen annual. His letter of resignation was submitted and accepted on November 6.

A recent administration announcement regarding the appropriation for the yearbook prompted his resignation. The yearbook staff was told that it would either receive $640, and distribute the copies free of charge to the student body or receive no grant and fix a nominal price for the book, a fee which would have been out of the range of the average student, according to Conroy.

In either case Conroy felt that the cost of the book could not be made up through advertising and therefore he would be responsible for the difference.

Regrets Step

In his letter of resignation, Conroy said he appreciated the difficulties facing the administration and regretted the step he was about to take. Nevertheless, he felt it necessary for his own protection and hoped his position would be understood.

The moderator, the Rev. Joseph A. d'Invioliers, S.J., said that he has no immediate plans for the yearbook. The fate of the Ever-

The dance is open to the entire student body. Tickets for the affair may be obtained at the Campus Shop and from members of the Block L at the price of $2.40 per couple.

Dress for the evening will be informal. The gym is to be arranged in cabaret style and refreshments will be sold at the Snack Bar in the basement of the gymnasium.

The dance is under the direction of Edward Miller, president of the Athletic Association. Publicity for the event is being handled by John O'Connor and refreshments by Hugh Bamberger.

It is the hope of the Block L that the dance will be well supported by the whole student body, in order to make more such events possible in the future.

Dr. Kirwin, History Teacher, Breaks Leg In Campus Fall

Dr. Harry W. Kirwin, chairman of the history department at Loyola, is at present recuperating in Mercy Hospital from injuries suffered in a fall in the school cafeteria November 7.

A victim of polio at an early age, Dr. Kirwin has been forced to walk with the aid of canes. He suffered a broken leg when he slipped on the floor.

green, he feels, rests in the hands of the senior class.

Moderator Traces Trouble

In an open letter to the senior class, Father d'Invioliers stated: "Until 1949 the total financial responsibility for the yearbook fell upon the senior class. From 1940 on each year the same difficulty came up, namely, insufficient funds to pay for the book. In those years the College usually had to foot the bill for the deficit, amounting anywhere from $100 to $1000."

The letter continued, "In 1949 I proposed to the administration, in behalf of the seniors, that some money from the Activities Budget be allocated to the yearbook. This was done and in that year $2500 was allocated . . . and we were instructed to give a free copy to each senior and each underclassman."

This year, at my recommendation, $5.00 per senior was assigned from the Activities Budget, the book to be sold to undergrads for $6 or $6.50 depending on the cost. This amount was later raised slightly over $5.00. The staff did not want to get out a book under those conditions and has resigned. Hence at present no work has been done on ads or on the book."

France Represents State During Industrial Congress

Howard J. France

Howard J. France, a junior in the B.S. II course, will represent the state of Maryland in the fifty-fifth congress of the National Association of Manufacturers. The congress will be held at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York City from December 5 until December 9.

France will be one of forty nine college students attending the meeting. There will be one student from each state and one from the District of Columbia. France was chosen to represent the state in competition with students from all Maryland colleges.

All Expenses Paid

During the time he is in New York he will stay at the Shelton Hotel. All expenses for the trip are paid by the N. A. M.

Earl Bunting, Managing Director of the National Association of Manufacturers, will give a welcoming address to the students on Tuesday. After the address they will visit a meeting of the United Nations.

Panel Discussions Held

After attending the N. A. M. meetings on Wednesday and Thursday, France will participate with the other students in a panel discussion on the subject, "Tomorrow's Leaders Look at the World Today." The object of the discussion is to give the students a chance to quiz the industrialists, under the direction of F. Kenneth Brasted, Director of the Education Department of the N. A. M.

The congress will end Saturday morning. It annually attracts 3,000 industrialists. This is the second year a representative student group has been invited.

France has been an associate editor of THE GREYHOUND and consistently named to the Dean's List of Honor Students.

Loyola Retreat Starts Monday

The entire student body will make the annual student retreat on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, November 20, 21 and 22. Religious exercises for both Freshmen and Upper Classmen will be held in the gymnasium. After Mass the Freshmen will go to the chapel for their talks, while the Upper Classmen will remain in the Gymnasium.

The Rev. Robert Gannon, S.J. will conduct the Upper class retreat. Father Gannon was formerly President of Fordham University and is now head of the Jesuit Retreat House at Staten Island, New York.

The Rev. James Martin, S.J. will be retreat master for the Freshmen class. Father Martin is a member of the Maryland Province Mission Band. During World War II Father Martin was a chaplain in the Army Air Corps in the North African Campaign.

Non-Catholic students will again be required to attend a series of lectures on the days of the retreat. These lectures will be conducted by Rev. Joseph B. Kurz, S.J.

The usual Mass at the close of the retreat will not be held on the campus because of the Thanksgiving holiday. Students will be urged to attend Mass and receive communion in their parish churches on Thanksgiving. For those who wish to attend, a Mass will be held in the Student Chapel on that day.

THE GREYHOUND appears in four pages for the second time this school year because of financial limitations. The paper suffered a proportionate cut in activity fees, as did most other groups, and recent rises in printing costs have offset the higher percentage of advertising carried.

John Lutz, business manager of the publication, offers all students interested in serving the paper for a 15% commission the opportunity. Contract blanks and information are available in the Greyhound office, $100.

The next issue will appear on December 8, for which the deadline will be November 27.

Clarifies Cuts In Club Funds, Draft Plans

by Bruce Alderman

Reasons for the decided cut in the financial allotments of the various activities and the possible adoption of a plan for acceleration were discussed by Rev. Joseph K. Drane, S.J., Dean of Studies, in a recent interview.

The Dean emphasized that the rising activities costs accompanied by the lowered student activity income, clearly necessitates a decrease in financial assistance as compared to former years. Students who notice such a curtailment are referred to an article by Benjamin Fine, one of the nation's leading authorities on education, which appears in the October 29 issue of the New York Times.

Problem Common

Mr. Fine stated that colleges and universities can meet the present financial crisis, caused by a considerable drop in enrollment, in one of three ways. They can raise more money by solicitation, increase tuition and other fees, or reduce some of their existing services. Since it is almost impossible to raise more money and since it would be fatal to increase tuition and other fees, Father Drane feels that a cut in activity allotments is the best alternative measure.

"The student activities income," he states, "has been distributed in as fair a manner as possible according to the following norms: Number of students engaged in the activity and general student interest in the activity."

Acceleration Readied

Concerning the question of possible acceleration, Father Drane disclosed that everything depended upon national emergency. He said this problem discussed in the education.

Orphan Gives Loyola Student Lesson

This is the story of a five-year-old kid named Charlie and a college boy who didn't know how lucky he was.

Charlie was the product of an on-and-off marriage. His home life was, at the best, unhappy — one filled with quarrels and bitterness. Half his short life had been spent in orphanage with other children who had received the same treatment at home.

Has Only One Suit

He had only one shabby, hand-me-down suit, which was frayed at the cuffs and elbows. His big brown eyes were wistful and seemed to be always on the verge of spilling a flood of tears.

He had seen too much of the gloomy walls and dormitories of orphanages where the cast-offs of human misery and incompatibility are sheltered. Despite the care of even the most considerate staff, an orphanage can be no better than four walls which make its inmates instinctively feel that life has given them a raw deal.

Has It Rough

The college boy thought he had it rough, too. He had no car and only one pair of grey flannels. He never had enough spending money. The small college which his parents had sacrificed to send him fell below his ideals; he wanted to go to one of the bigger, flashier places, where life was a whirl of parties and where books and studies were only incidental.

Perhaps the Will of God made their paths cross; perhaps He knew that it would help them both to meet each other. Nevertheless, they met at a party which the college gave for the orphans.

Charlie came because this was a Great Event for him — a welcome break in the dreary monotony of the orphanage. He had looked forward to the party for months, and would remember it for months afterward.

He wasn't hard to please.

He Was Bored

The college boy came because he was bored and needed diversion.

Loyola Impresses Brazilian Educator

Dr. Jose Faria Goes, Professor of Educational Biology of the University of Brazil, Rio de Janeiro, arrived in Washington, D. C. on October 18, 1950 for a stay of several days, prior to touring educational centers throughout the United States, including Loyola. In the course of his three-month visit, Dr. Faria Goes will study administrative techniques employed by American colleges and universities. Arrangements for the visit of the Brazilian educator have been made by the American Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admission Officers.

Dr. Goes, an alumnus of the Jesuit High School in Rio, showed great interest, in his visit to Loyola on October 30, in the number of Jesuit colleges and universities in this country as compared to the number in his own country. He expressed interest in the sports and social activities program here at Loyola as an item very lacking in South American education.

After all, give the kids a break, he thought. Besides, it would make him feel superior.

Somehow the two met. Out of the hundreds of orphans and the scores of college boys they met. And they started talking.

They talked about many things. They spoke of—well, what does a college boy who knows all the answers and a five-year-old tyke with big wistful eyes and a shock of unruly hair talk about?

Orphan's Delight

The college boy filled Charlie with ice cream, candy and cake. Charlie was in seventh heaven.

And the college boy—he didn't pay for the food and somebody had to eat it, didn't they?

Before they both knew it, it was time to leave. "Well Charlie," said the college boy. "I hope I can see you again next year."

The Boy Says "No!"

The wistfulness crept into Charlie's eyes again. "No," he said.

"And why not?" asked the college boy, astounded that anyone could refuse such generosity as his.

"Maybe I can go home to my Daddy and Mommy if they make up," answered Charlie.

It made the college boy think. Here was a poor little waif, with two strikes on him from the start, whose idea of heaven was just to be home.

And here he was—gripping because he was missing a few of life's luxuries.

And that is the story of how a five-year-old kid in a shabby suit changed a college boy's outlook on life.

Frosh Elect Donald Rohr To Head Governing Board

Election of temporary officers of the Freshman Class was held on Tuesday, October 31, under the supervision of the Student Council. Donald Rohr was elected president of the Governing Board, having the largest plurality with 42 votes. Runners up were Joseph Lacy, Bruce Alderman, Daniel Smith, Hugh Meade, Harry Chant and Kemp Roche. One hundred and twenty-six ballots were cast, with each voter being allowed to list his first seven choices for office. Those elected were approved by the dean, and will hold their offices until a permanent election is held in December.

Loyola High Grad

Donald Rohr, president, is a graduate of Loyola High School, where he was president of the student body in his senior year. He was a contributor to the student magazine, the Blue and Gold. He is a resident of St. Michael's Parish, and plays basketball for the St. Catherine's CYO.

Bruce Alderman and Joseph Lacy are also Loyola High School graduates of the Class of '50. Alderman was a member of the debating team for two years as well as a staff member of the school magazine. Lacy, the brother of Jim Lacy, played varsity basketball for the Dons the last three years.

Was Hopkins President

Harry Chant, a Calvert Hall alumnus, who tied for last place with Kemp Roche, was president of the Freshman Class at Johns Hopkins from 1948-49; this year he transferred to Loyola College. Daniel Smith was graduated from Poly and Kemp Roche comes from Towson Catholic High School. Hugh Meade from Loyola was an officer of the Sodality in his last year.

Upperclassmen Start Philosophy Seminar

A philosophy seminar series was begun on Tuesday under the direction of the Rev. Joseph A. d'Inville, S.J. The American Bill of Rights and John Locke's "Civil Government" were assigned as reading matter for the second meeting.

That session will consider these works in the light of the following questions: does the Declaration of Independence follow out John Locke's ideas on civil government? How would you establish, on philosophical grounds, the truths contained in the Declaration of Independence?

What are the proximate and ultimate sources of supreme civil power? Do you agree completely with Locke on civil government, its origin and nature? Questions arising during the discussion of these will also be answered among those attending.

Rector Invites Parents

The Parents, Alumni and Friends of Loyola College are cordially invited by the President to attend the Christmas Carol Program, presented by the Glee Club, to be held on Sunday, December 10, at 8:15 P.M., at the Maryland Casualty Auditorium.

national convention which he attended in Washington, D. C., on October 6 and 7. As a result of this meeting, colleges were encouraged to submit a description of their facilities to the armed services, in case of possible R. O. T. C. expansion, and were reminded that a return to an accelerated program may be necessitated by whatever steps the Government takes toward mobilization.

The Dean said that Loyola has already presented a description of its facilities to the Army and Navy Departments, and a plan of acceleration is under consideration.

"Such a program will be adopted only if warranted by national emergency," Father Drane concluded, "so the best advice I can give is to study hard and stay near the top."

Statistics

Each holiday weekend results in hundreds of blackened tombs of twisted metal piled along American highways. Close predictions of the number about to die have become as much a part of the holiday scene as the weather report.

A high proportion of these deaths and injuries are suffered by students. Insurance companies in most states jack their rates especially for this age group because of the lesson their statistics have taught them.

Monday morning will see several hundred less Americans. Your name might be cut into one of those new tombstones.

Go easy this weekend and over Thanksgiving. Safety is no accident. Drive, or drink. An ambulance will get you there faster, but in more pieces. Don't become a statistic. Death is so permanent.

Read All About It

As fellow editors harassed by rising press costs and declining student income, we can fully sympathize with the staff of the yearbook and with the reasons for the resignation of some. Voluntary efforts on the part of seniors carrying heavy schedules in and outside of college are easily discouraged by the irksome responsibility of making non-elastic ends meet.

However, as seniors we are most anxious to be assured of a yearbook. It is a vital adjunct to the graduate, a treasured scrap book of his college years. A graduating class of eighty-six logically calls for a small, well-prepared book produced by the latest and least expensive processes. We suggest the elimination of the stereotyped activity pictures and write-ups, and the concentration on review of this year and the four years during which the seniors have been here, with individual pictures of the seniors only.

Slowly Uniting The Nations

Recent strategy in the United Nations portends the powerful position which that organization is slowly gaining. The move to send consideration of urgent matters apt to be vetoed by major powers into the veto-less General Assembly is very significant. This freedom for future action can now be backed by the muscle which Secretary Acheson's integrated armed force plan provides.

The obstruction of control by large nations has now been dissolved into the truly representative Assembly. Perhaps this will carry with it another chip of the concept of a nationally divided world, and move us that much nearer a peaceful one.

Perhaps the integrated armed forces and world trouble-shooters now provided will develop into a world armed force under a sovereign world government. We're getting there, slowly, but surely.

Alumni Doings

by Terrence Burke, '48

There's still time to make reservations for the Alumni Association retreat at Manresa from December 1 to 3. The men to contact are George W. McManus at LE 7558 (daytimes) or John Kernan LI 2880 (at night). Or, you can get in touch with either by postcard or letter.

The next big date to circle on your calendar is Tuesday, January 23, the night of the alumni banquet. It will be held at the Lord Baltimore Hotel and Frank Muth and his committee are making plans now.

Loyola's Alumni Bowling League still meets regularly on Tuesday evenings. If you'd like to sign up, get in touch with Ed Kaltenbach, who may be reached at the College during the day.

Just room for a few personals:

Albert J. Jones, '38, is opening the Preston Medical Laboratory at 19 West Preston Street. It is a clinical laboratory service for the physicians of Baltimore.

William F. Carver, '49, has joined the staff of the Naval Ordnance Laboratory at White Oak, Md., as a physicist in the Mines and Depth Charge Division. At Loyola, Bill was a president of the Dramatic Society and secretary and vice president of the Physics Club. He was also vice president of his class.

William C. Rogers, Jr., '48, will be married on December 2 to Miss Helen Lears. The ceremony will be performed at Blessed Sacrament Church at 10:30 A. M.

From The Library

Our civilization has advanced materially since the 13th century, notably in science. Modern science provides plumbing systems surpassed only in the Middle Minoan period around 1500 B. C. Education too has progressed, and is becoming an exact science like psychology, football, and statistics. Educators once were interested primarily in plumbing the mysteries of human life, conduct and intellectual growth. Nowadays, as their professional literature shows, they concentrate on plumbing. The gain in exactness is obvious.

Yet there may be value in discovering what teachers thought when teachers were still encouraged to think. The 13th century did not solve all the human problems the 20th century ignores, but it possessed abundant data on them accumulated through the ages. A teacher named Thomas Aquinas threw these data together in a remarkably readable textbook entitled Summa Theologica — which may be freely translated as The Facts of Life; or What Every Young Man Should Know.

Utter ignorance of medieval culture will not always be considered proof of cultural superiority, and students may wish to anticipate the change of fashion. We have therefore ventured to remove one set of Summa Theologica in English to the open shelves. Some will prefer the original Latin.

Varsity-Alumni Contest To Open '50-'51 Season

On the night of November 25, Loyola College's basketball team opens its '50-'51 court season with the annual Varsity-Alumni game. With only four members remaining from last year's team, the Hounds will face a talent-laden old-timer lineup.

Among those returning for another whirl on the Evergreen court will be Jim Lacy, all-time Loyola great who set the National Collegiate record for points scored in a college career; burly Sid Roche, rugged rebound retriever, and hook-shot artist; and Al Barthelme, present coach of Towson Catholic High School and former Loyola mentor.

Others To Return

Also returning for another try will be Tom Gisriel and Paul Feeley, the talented pivot-men of Loyola's '47-'48 championship squad and George Bardelman, brilliant little floorman and playmaker.

Stellar members from the Greyhounds' title-winning outfit of the '48-'49 season, Bob Barry, Sal Cammaratta, Bill Ferguson, Ed Hughes and Jack Simanski will in all probability make their appearance.

Open Against The Wolfpack

On December 2, Loyola will officially open its court season against the Wolfpack of North Carolina State University at Raleigh. Last year the displaced "Hoosiers" were rated one of the outstanding teams in the country, and led by Sam Ranzino and Dick Dickey copped the Southern Conference and played in the National Invitation Tournament in Madison Square Garden.

This year, they appear to be even better. In two games against the powerful professional Rochester Royals, they lost each contest by the margin of four points.

Two Teams Tie For Touch Lead

The Blind Men and the Old Exporters are now deadlocked for the lead in the intramural football league. However, Monday's contest between these two powerhouses will decide the championship.

The Blind Men are favored to cop the crown, since they have amassed 131 points and have not permitted their opponents to cross the goal line once. Fielding a well balanced team featuring a behemoth line and a shifty backfield, the Blind Men have literally crushed any and all opposition.

The Old Exporters are likewise undefeated, but their record is not as impressive. Indeed, some consider them very lucky to have squeezed by the hard-fighting Zetas.

They will have to watch out for the running of Marsh Love and Tom Wagner and the deadly passing of Tom Lind and Bull Bardelman. On the receiving end of these passes have been Fireball Nasco, Pins Conroy and Crazylegs Freeze. But the behemoths of the line deserve the credit for the success of the team.

M-Dixon Clinic To Be Held Nov. 19

The First Annual Basketball Clinic sponsored by The Mason-Dixon Intercollegiate Conference will be held at Loyola College on November 19 in the Evergreen Gym.

Invitations have been extended to all the college and high school coaches in the Mason-Dixon vicinity and their athletic staffs. The clinic, which will not be open to the public, will be free of charge for those who wish to attend.

The committee in charge of the affair is composed of Emil G. Reitz, Jr., Director of Athletics at Loyola; A. Paul Menton, Commissioner of The Mason-Dixon Intercollegiate Conference; and John Donohue, President of the Central District Board of Basketball Officials.

Mr. Reitz, chairman of the clinic, stated that there is a twofold reason for holding the clinic. First, to develop better basketball in this area; and secondly, to promote a better understanding among the coaches and the officials regarding the interpretation of the rules and the conduct of the game.

Winter Sports Hold Meeting

The two winter sports that have not as yet started their official practice sessions, wrestling and swimming, held their first meeting of the year last week primarily with the purpose in mind of inducing freshmen candidates to try out for the squads.

The two squads should start practice sessions in the near future, as their season is but a few weeks away. Captain of this year's wrestlers is Bob Weiss, while Eddie Miller and Andy "the Kingfish" McCormick will lead the mermen when the season gets under way.

Once again Phil Goodman will handle the coaching duties of the matmen. Bish Baker, Loyola's all-around coach, will mentor the swimmers until January when Jake Fisher, coach of last year's squad, will take over once again.

Harriers Prep For Title As Booters Lose To B.U.

Loyola College's cross-country squad has concluded the most successful season it has ever had. The hillmen posted a season log of five wins and one defeat.

The Hound harriers scored wins over Washington College, Catholic University, Gallaudet, Johns Hopkins and Mt. St. Mary's College. Two of these wins were gained with perfect scores of 45 to 15.

Team Cooperates

A loss to St. Joseph's College of Philadelphia prevented the Green and Grey team from having an undefeated season. The powerful Hawks downed the Loyola squad by a score of 52 to 15.

Coach McElroy attributes his charges' success to the squad's splendid teamwork and cooperation. In his opinion anyone of six boys, namely; Joe Paszek, Tom Volatile, Ed Townsend, George Kimmerlein, George Bonadio and Ed Colburn are capable of walking off with top honors.

M-D Meet Next

However, it is the performances of freshmen Bonadio and Colburn, who hail from Poly and Mt. St. Joe, respectively, that have given the Evergreen footmen the needed punch in registering their enviable record.

Tomorrow afternoon, the Hounds will be put to the acid test at Gallaudet's lengthy four-mile course where the annual Mason-Dixon meet will be held.

In spite of the Hounds record, Coach McElroy feels that his team will have to defeat Bridgewater and Roanoke or settle for third or fourth place.

Booters Lose Two

While the Greyhound harriers continued on their "winning ways", the Loyola soccer team absorbed its second and third defeats of the season. The losses were to Baltimore University and Seton Hall College.

The loss to the B U Boys killed the chance of the Hounds for recovering the Mason-Dixon Soccer title which they relinquished to the Bees last year. Scoring two goals in the third period, while holding the Green and Grey scoreless throughout the game, Baltimore U. was able to take undisputed possession of first place in the M-D loop.

The Pirates of Seton Hall took the measure of the Greyhound booters in their final game of the season by a 4-to-2 count.

DON'T BE AN "I-WISH-I-HAD." An I-Wish-I-Had comes to Sears too late, sees the Sears value he would rather have had and is heard to say: "I wish I had shopped Sears before I parted with my money." Remember: your money does buy more at SEARS.
